Tripura CM Manik Saha exudes confidence in BJP's victory in Lok Sabha polls

AGENCIES

GOMATI (TRIPURA): Tripura Chief Minister Manik Saha on Sunday expressed confidence in the BJP's victory in the state, saying that the large crowds during the nomination filing for BJP candidates prove it.

The remark was made at a gathering in Garji, Gomati District, where the participation of women was significant.

"We are working to fulfil PM Modi's hope to win over 400 seats in the Lok Sabha. Biplab Kumar Deb will contest from the West Parliamentary Constituency, and Kriti Singh Debarma will contest from the East seat. When we went to file nominations in both seats, we witnessed massive crowds of people. This indicated what would happen on June 4. We are confident that we will win both seats," said Saha. The Chief Minister emphasised the importance of empowering women for the country's progress.

"To empower and strengthen women, we have implemented a 33 per cent job reservation and 55 per cent stall distribution for women. Furthermore, additional measures have been taken to empower women," stated the Chief Minister.

Saha criticized the CPI (M) and Congress for their alliance and the terror they unleashed during their regime. He contrasted this with the peaceful 2023 Assembly election under the BJP's rule.

"The opposition always said that law and order were not good, but what we have seen is that during their regime, elections meant terror and violence. However, the 2023 Assembly election was held peacefully with no violence. We must visit each house to strengthen our relationship with the public, gain support, and ask people to bless PM Modi. If we want to strengthen the country, then we need Narendra Modi as Prime Minister. PM Modi always works for the people and guarantees it. We always respect the constitution. Many people were killed and violence took place over the last 35 years. During the elections, members of the opposition party had to leave the state in fear. But it is unfortunate that now Congress has formed an alliance with CPIM and created the INDI alliance, in which I will be the only one left," he added.

The CM also interacted with senior citizens and eminent personalities of Kakraban Mondal on the same day.

The elections are scheduled to be held in two phases in Tripura. The West Tripura seat will go to the polls on April 19, while the East Tripura seat will witness voting on April 26. The counting of votes will be held on June 4.

In the 2019 Lok Sabha elections, the BJP won the two seats in the state. Pratima Bhowmik and Rebati Tripura were elected from the West Tripura and East Tripura constituencies, respectively.

This was a notable achievement, as the BJP had not won any seats in the previous elections. Meanwhile, in the 2014 Lok Sabha elections in Tripura, the BJP did not win any seats. The Communist Party of India (Marxist) secured a landslide victory, winning both seats in the state.

Centuries-old handicraft industry - the Sarthebari bell-metal industry is the second largest handicraft sector in Assam after bamboo craft and currently around 2000 artisans are engaged in the Sarthebari bell-metal craft industry.

Sarthebari in the Bapeta district is a place well known for its metal products making clusters like bell-metal and brass-metal work and developing a variety of products since generations which have been recognised 2,000 years back also as one of the most useful and prominent products from the one of the holiest place in the country situated in the Kamrup geographical region of Assam. The common objects made by the artisans in Sarthebari are kalah (water pot), sarai (a platter or tray mounted on a base), kahi (dish), bati (bowl), lota (water pot with a long neck) and tal (cymbals).

The technology involved in making the objects is traditional and simple. The main tools are anvils of different sizes locally known as balmuri, chatuli and akue, hammers, pincers, files, chisels and some minor equipment.

Locally they are called Dulaii, Gasha, Saria, Piri, Khanta (an iron instrument used for polishing the bell metal products), Pocker etc.

These artisans inherit the knowledge from their elders and thus the craft sector runs on the hereditary system. Modern tools and technology have not yet touched the lives of the artisans and they still adhere to primitive tools and equipment in bell-metal production.

Historically, this craft form dates back to the 7th century AD. Various written records reveal that the bell metal industry of Assam existed from the time of Kumar Bhaskarvarman, the king of the Varman Dynasty, when, the Kumar of eastern India gifted drinking vessels to Harshavardhana of Kannauj. Despite facing numerous problems, and challenges, the artisans are engaging to preserve their ancestral craft.

The Assam Bihu Dhol is a drum-like musical instrument from Assam with a barrel shape carved and hollowed out of a single piece of quality wood.

The right head is larger and has a louder pitch than the left side. Both the faces of the Bihu Dhol are enclosed with thin leather. It is tightened with the support of 'Gajra' (the outer diameter of the dhol head), similar to Tabla and it is interlaced to the shell and hoop on the other side by thin but solid leather straps.

Bihu Dhol is the most valued musical instrument for the Assamese, a vital part of its folk festival and tradition. Bihu Dhol becomes more relevant when the festival in question is Bihu itself. This special Dhol is beaten along the Rongali Bihu dance and songs like Bihu Naam, are performed during the occasion. Expressing his gratitude to the government, Nabajit Deka, a shopkeeper of Guwahati who sells Sarthebari bell-metal products told ANI, "It is a great moment for Assam that Sarthebari Metal Craft and other traditional products, craft of Assam get GI tag."

Under the inspiring leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi ji, the tea community, along with contemporary society from every section, has been reaping the fruits of welfare democracy that were long denied during the misrule of the Congress government. Due to Modi ji's early experience in life as a tea worker, he always advised me to work for the welfare of the tea garden community. This is the reason why I, as the then CM of Assam, gave special attention to setting up new schools so that the young generation from your community can get educated," Sonowal said.

conditions of roads within tea gardens, Anganwadi centres, a cash incentive of Rs 12,000 to every pregnant woman, free primary education for the children of the tea community, free medicines at hospitals, and many other schemes. The visionary step of the Jan Dhan Yojana, launched by PM Narendra Modi ji, has given all of us an opportunity to become financially secure and become part of the financially and socially inclusive development of the country. It is a moment of great satisfaction that more than 8,50,000 bank accounts were opened under this scheme for the tea workers, making them part of the country's development process."

"Since 2014, PM Narendra Modi ji has spearheaded numerous welfare initiatives aimed at uplifting the tea community. Programs such as Jan Dhan Yojana, Ujjwala, Swachh Bharat Abhiyan, and Pradhan Mantri Awas Yojana have significantly enhanced living standards within this community.

Nagaland Congress urges Centre to address ENPO's FNT demand

AGENCIES

KOHIMA: Nagaland Congress has urged the government of India (GoI) to heed the demands of the Eastern Nagaland Peoples' Organization (ENPO) for "Frontier Nagaland".

This comes amidst recent discussions concerning ENPO's demand for Frontier Nagaland Territory (FNT). The Nagaland Congress reaffirmed its position on the Frontier Nagaland Territory (FNT) issue.

Former Nagaland Congress president K Therie criticized ENPO's decision to boycott the Lok Sabha elections as an extreme measure, equating it to a constitutional breakdown that would stain Nagaland's statehood history.

Therise emphasized ENPO's significance, asserting its representation of grievances and discrimination issues among the rural population and youth, deserving respect. He urged Nagaland governor to mediate discussions between the government of India (GoI) and ENPO to address the issue amicably.

Clarifying their stance, the Nagaland Congress emphasized that Therie's statement represents his personal opinion and not the party's official position. The Nagaland Congress expressed solidarity with ENPO, considering their demands as legitimate manifestations of longstanding grievances and trust deficits. They criticized successive Nagaland and central governments for exacerbating disunity through indifference and political ineptitude over the past decade. While acknowledging concerns raised by some political factions regarding ENPO's approach, the Nagaland Congress recognized the organization's limited avenues for voicing demands within conventional democratic norms.

The Nagaland Congress also called upon the government of India (GoI) to acknowledge ENPO's demands and refrain from actions that oppose the spirit of ENPO resolutions.
